IMPORTANT! PLEASE READ:

Community service may be court ordered or used to work off a portion of your fines and costs. Community service must be performed from an approved community service organization. If you are unable to work at one of the listed agencies, you may volunteer at a registered nonprofit organization or through a government agency. You must have it approved by the court or your probation officer before you volunteer. A registered nonprofit is one that has a federal tax i.d. number.

It is your responsibility to schedule the community service work, present the hour log to the person supervising your work to obtain an authorized signature, and return the completed log sheet to the court. Community service hours will be verified with the agency before being accepted by the court.
